Genocide is “any of the following acts committed with intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a national, ethnical, racial, or religious group.” This includes:

1. a) killing members of a group
2. b) causing serious bodily or mental harm to members of the group
3. c) deliberately inflicting on the group conditions of life calculated to bring about its physical destruction in whole or in part
4. d) imposing measures intended to prevent births within the group
5. e) forcibly transferring children of the group to another group

—1948 UN Genocide Convention
Genocide is a form of one-sided mass killing in which a state or other authority intends to destroy a group, as that group and membership in it are defined by the perpetrator.

The term genocide is “...more and more an empty vessel, a word in search of its meaning.”

Genocide is a denial of the right of existence of entire human groups, as homicide is the denial of the right to lives of individual human beings... When racial, religious, political, and other groups have been destroyed entirely or in part....

—Initial UN Resolution (1946) prior to the creation of the 1948 Convention (Totten, p. 60)
Genocide can include... the destruction of the entire creative heritage of a people: its literature, its architectural monuments, its arts, its entire legacy, in short, its culture.

Genocide is “the wanton murder of human beings on the basis of any identity whatsoever that they share—national, ethnic, racial, religious, political, geographical, ideological.”

In Bosnia, I think we all got ethnic cleansing mixed up with genocide. To me they are different terms. The horror of them is similar, but the purpose is not. Ethnic cleansing is not “I want to destroy an ethnic group, wipe it out.” It’s “They’re not going to live with us.”

An attempt at creating a perceived purity in a group or society through any means.

According to the U.S. State Department, ethnic cleansing generally entails the systematic and forced removal of members of an ethnic group from their communities to change the ethnic composition of a region. It includes:

1. forced expulsions
2. looting and burning
3. detentions
4. summary execution
5. rape
6. violations of medical neutrality
7. identity cleansing

Ethnic cleansing – the use of force or intimidation to remove people of a certain ethnic or religious group from an area—was the central fact of the wars of Yugoslavia’s destruction. The practice has a method: terror. It has a smell: the fetid misery of refugees. It has an appearance: the ruins of ravaged homes. Its purpose is to ensure—through killing, destruction, threat, and humiliation—that no return is possible.”

Crimes against humanity are “part of a systematic or widespread attack against a civilian population... [which includes] murder, extermination, deportation... forcible transfer of a population... imprisonment, torture, rape, sexual slavery, enforced prostitution, forced pregnancy, enforced sterilization....”

Serious criminal human rights abuses. They are distinguished from domestic crimes by their scope or their “mass nature” (that is, whether they are targeted against particular groups and/or sponsored by the state).

A war crime is a punishable offense, under international (criminal) law, for violations of the law of war by any person or persons, military or civilian. Every violation of the law of war in an interstate conflict is a war crime, while violations in internal conflicts don't necessarily amount to war crimes.... It comprises such acts as mistreatment of prisoners of war or civilians. War crimes are sometimes part of instances of mass murder and genocide though these crimes are more broadly covered under international humanitarian law described as crimes against humanity.

The 1945 Charter of the International Military Tribunal at Nuremberg defined war crimes as “violations of the laws or customs of war,” including murder, ill treatment, or deportation of civilians in occupied territory; murder or ill treatment of prisoners of war; killing of hostages; plunder of public or private property; wanton destruction of municipalities; and devastation not militarily necessary.
